

SCREENING DISCLOSURE - FICTIONAL SEARCH RESULT

Requesting purpose: child-related employment assessment, Northern Territory.

Run date: 25 September 2026. Record identifier: INVALID-NPH-CJH-XX.

Candidate legal name: Callum James Hartigan.

Other name searched: Callum James Byrne.

Date of birth: 17 August 1994. Birthplace: Christchurch, New Zealand.

Consent reference: signed candidate authority, 21 September 2026.

Matching fields: former name, current name, birth date and historical NT addresses.

AUSTRALIAN COURT OUTCOME

Jurisdiction: Northern Territory; Darwin Local Court.

Incident: 12 November 2016.

Charge description: aggravated assault, Criminal Code s188.

Court appearance: 3 April 2017; plea: guilty.

Finding: convicted; conviction recorded.

Sentence: imprisonment eight months, wholly suspended; good behaviour bond twelve months.

Victim age recorded in linked court record: 23 years.

Name on court result: Callum James Byrne.

Link to current surname: registered name change, 3 May 2019.

The Australian search records one criminal conviction and no further criminal charges after the 2016 assault.

No outstanding warrant or pending charge is returned in this synthetic disclosure. This statement describes the search result as at its run date. It does not claim that every unreported act of misconduct is in a criminal-history database. Traffic infringements are supplied in a separate attachment rather than displayed as another criminal conviction.

Search handling: result reviewed for duplicate aliases; same court matter consolidated under both surnames. The historic matter is not listed twice. The source identifier is deliberately invalid and cannot retrieve any real police record. New Zealand youth information is outside this Australian search and is attached separately. Civil protective-order information is presented in the next section, with its own source limitations.

Transmission note: disclosure released to the Screening Authority for the candidate-authorised fictional assessment. Employer receives the compiled exercise copy, not a general authority to obtain police data. The record has no police signature image, secure watermark, real officer identifier or live verification link. Use only with the accompanying date and matching details.

DOMESTIC ORDER INDEX - RELATED RECORD, NOT ANOTHER CONVICTION
Candidate: Callum James Hartigan, born 17 August 1994.
Order reference: INVALID-DVO-CJH-2021.
Protected person: Jessica Tran, former partner.
Source event: police attendance, Moulden residence, 16 March 2021.
Order commencement: 16 March 2021.
Expiry: 15 March 2022, at the end of that day.
Duration description: twelve-month protective order.
Source route: police-initiated order, confirmed in Local Court on 22 March 2021.
Associated criminal charge: none recorded.
Breach proceedings: none recorded.

The March 2021 domestic violence order expired in March 2022 without any recorded breach or charge. This index records the existence and status of the order. It does not turn the order into a criminal conviction and does not remove the underlying incident from consideration. The narrative extract and the order wording are separate documents in this transfer. Read those sources for the account of the event and the conditions imposed.

Order-search scope: the name-change linkage was used for matching. No duplicate order under the former surname was found in the supplied index. The child's name is suppressed in the incident material; the index does not identify her as a complainant or a separate protected person. The absence of a child field here is not a statement about who was in the house.

Administrative fields: service recorded by issuing police on commencement date; court confirmation cross-reference INVALID-LC-DVO-CJH; no variation listed; no revocation entry listed; expiry completed by passage of time. A status of expired records the ending of this order, not a professional evaluation of relationship behaviour.

Export handling: order metadata retained because it was supplied for the assessment purpose. Police criminal result and domestic-order index use different record types. Their placement in one disclosure packet is a document-management choice. Any ambiguity about the incident account requires the underlying source, not a new reading of the metadata. Candidate consent reference: Section H, 21 September 2026. Search officer field: fictional disclosure clerk, contact disclosure@police-records.example.invalid.

SEARCH COVERAGE AND ALIAS RECONCILIATION

Request date: 22 September 2026. Completion date: 25 September 2026.

Input name set: Hartigan, Callum James; Byrne, Callum James.

Birth input: 17 August 1994; Christchurch.

Address input supplied by intake: Gray, Moulden, Driver.

Historical alias match: the 2017 disposition uses Byrne.

Current match: order index uses Hartigan.

Disposition duplication: excluded on court reference and incident date.

The disclosed conviction was returned once after reconciliation of the former and current surnames. Both names were searched; the printed absence of a second conviction is not caused by searching Hartigan alone. Address strings are matching aids. They are not a residential-history certification and do not independently establish that the candidate listed every residence on his application.

Search categories checked: Australian court convictions available to this purpose; current charges; outstanding warrants; supplied domestic-order index. The New Zealand police response is separately issued. Youth diversions from another jurisdiction should not be inferred from an Australian nil-category row. A search run is a dated record, not a promise about events after the search.

Table - result control:

Current surname | matched to domestic-order index | retained

Former surname | matched to Darwin court outcome | retained

Birth date | common to matched sources | retained

Court reference | one disposition | no duplicate

Outstanding charge category | none returned | dated result

Warrant category | none returned | dated result

Traffic category | separate supplied extract | not merged

International category | separate NZ response | not merged

No sex-offence, child-abuse, drug or kidnapping charge is returned in this synthetic Australian history. That category statement does not establish the significance of an incident involving property damage or a child witnessing an adult argument. It should be read with the actual sources rather than used as a shortcut to the final clearance decision.

Quality check: surnames were not normalised within source quotations. The court remarks keep the former name and the DVO retains the current one. Search contacts and references are intentionally invalid. No response in this packet was produced by querying a real person, live police system or actual criminal-history service.

DISCLOSURE DELIVERY AND RECORD LIMITATIONS

Recipient: Screening Authority, NT, simulated transfer.

Delivery date: 25 September 2026.

Consent locator: application Section H.

Printed copy count: one disclosure packet, four pages.

Retention marking: assessment exercise only.

Items associated with this disclosure: Darwin conviction entry; domestic-order index; alias reconciliation. Associated source copies: Local Court sentencing remarks, bond completion letter, domestic incident narrative and protective order. Those copies contain detail that a result table cannot reproduce. New Zealand disclosure and traffic history were supplied by different routes and retain their own issue dates.

Definitions used in the printout: 'none returned' describes the search output for the specified category and date. 'No breach recorded' describes the linked order and sentence records, not a witness account of all contact between people. 'Conviction recorded' preserves the formal result. A protective order has a different status from a criminal conviction. An employer warning is not entered here as an offence because the personnel source is not a court result.

Data preparation note: every record and identity in this exercise is fictional. Official jurisdiction labels indicate the style of record needed for the test; the case references are invalid. No actual officer's name, badge number, telephone number or signature has been copied. Emails use a non-deliverable example.invalid domain. This packet cannot be used to obtain, amend or certify a real police record.

Release checklist: authority located; name-change link located; requested purpose entered; result reconciled; source pages not rewritten; delivery registered. Follow-up questions about source accounts should identify the relevant document and sentence so that an issuer can be asked about its own record. The disclosure clerk has not reconciled differing witness accounts within personal statements or evaluated program certificates.

No conclusion about the candidate's present risk to children appears in this printout. It supplies the history result for an assessor to read alongside employment duties, source accounts and subsequent conduct material. The absence of later criminal charges can be relevant evidence without being proof that no anger incident or interpersonal difficulty ever occurred. Delivery authorised by fictional disclosure supervisor; secure verification field deliberately disabled.
