

DOMESTIC AND FAMILY VIOLENCE ACT 2007 - SYNTHETIC ORDER COPY

Reference: INVALID-DVO-CJH-2021.

Respondent: Callum James Hartigan, born 17 August 1994.

Protected person: Jessica Tran, adult former partner.

Initial order maker: authorised police officer, fictional.

Order made and served: 16 March 2021.

Court confirmation: Darwin Local Court, 22 March 2021.

Term: 16 March 2021 through 15 March 2022 inclusive.

Order type: police-initiated protective order, confirmed without variation.

ORDER CONDITIONS - TRANSCRIBED EXERCISE TERMS

The respondent must not engage in domestic violence towards the protected person. He must not threaten, harass or intimidate her. He must not damage property as a means of intimidation or abuse directed at her. Arrangements concerning collection of belongings are to be made without a confrontation and through agreed indirect communication where necessary. Nothing in this order authorises any conduct prohibited by another law.

The protected person on this order is Jessica Tran; the order is not a conviction for a criminal offence.

No child is separately named as a protected person on this copy. That field does not decide whether a child was present during the underlying incident. The initiating police narrative is a separate record and should be read for the circumstances that led to the order.

Service acknowledgment: respondent received a copy at police attendance and the conditions were explained. Court confirmation copy supplied after listing. No admission of a criminal charge is transcribed in the acknowledgment. Respondent did not contest continuation of the protective terms at confirmation.

Registry fields: confirmation date entered; original commencement retained; no extension specified; no variation entered; no earlier revocation listed. These are administrative fields relating to this order. The copy does not certify the respondent's behaviour in unrelated settings or represent a clearance decision for employment.

Document notice: all names, reference values, dates and signatures form a fictional case. This text is not an executable order and must not be served on any person. Official statute and court titles indicate document style only. Registry contact: orders.copy@example.invalid, 08 7000 0xxx.

SERVICE AND CONFIRMATION ENDORSEMENTS

Respondent: Callum James Hartigan.

Order reference: INVALID-DVO-CJH-2021.

Service date: 16 March 2021.

Served by: fictional attending member Neri Pell.

Method: copy handed to respondent, explanation recorded.

Respondent acknowledgment: copy received; questions about conditions answered.

Protected-person copy: supplied at attendance.

Court listing: 22 March 2021, Darwin Local Court.

Confirmation entry: order confirmed for original term. No contested factual hearing about the child's whereabouts is recorded in this order copy. The order has no separate finding about what the child saw or heard. Its purpose and operative conditions relate to protection of the named adult. The police narrative remains the source for the attendance account.

Registry checklist:

Identity name and date of birth entered | yes

Order commencement entered | 16 March 2021

Expiry entered | 15 March 2022

Service field completed | yes

Conditions copy provided | yes

Confirmation field completed | 22 March 2021

Variation field | none

Extension field | none

Parties were advised to obtain legal advice if uncertain about the order's operation. No real service number, court counter address or signature is provided in this exercise. The recorded acknowledgment of receipt is not a character reference. A lack of contest at confirmation does not convert every sentence in the police narrative into an adjudicated criminal fact.

Routine copy handling: the term shown on the initial police order remains the term on the confirmed copy. The clerk did not begin a fresh twelve-month period on the confirmation date. The incident date, order commencement and court confirmation are separate fields. The expiry notation on the following page records the end of the original term.

This endorsement does not attach a transcript of the listing. No other protective person is inserted by the copy clerk. No offence is entered merely because the document has a court stamp field. The criminal-history printout separately identifies the absence of a charge from the event. The underlying behaviour may still require screening consideration. Copy-control signature: fictional registry clerk Amity Vale; contact orders.copy@example.invalid.

EXPIRY AND HISTORICAL COPY ENDORSEMENT

Expiry entry: end of 15 March 2022.

Copy request: 24 September 2026.

Candidate current name: Callum James Hartigan.

Reference: INVALID-DVO-CJH-2021-COPY.

The registry status is expired; no extension, breach proceeding or criminal charge is recorded against this order in the supplied linked extract.

The status describes this order's administrative history. It does not remove the police incident account from the file. Expiry occurred by passage of the specified term, not by a finding that the event did not occur. No later order is attached to this copy request response.

Copy inventory: initial protective terms; service and confirmation endorsements; expiry and historical copy endorsement. The copy was prepared at the candidate's request for an employment-screening submission. The source date is retained on the original terms. The reissue date identifies the copy transaction and should not be reported as the date domestic violence was alleged.

Records handling table:

Order term | twelve months | completed by expiry

Initial service | attendance date | record retained

Court confirmation | 22 March 2021 | without variation

Breach proceeding | none recorded | linked extract

Original incident narrative | separate issuer document | not rewritten

Child interview | not part of order copy | no finding supplied

Screening conclusion | not a registry function | no conclusion

The registry has not sought a new account from the protected person. Her address and contact details are withheld from this exercise. No child contact information is present. This copy cannot be used to approach either person. Any screening information request must identify the appropriate holder and scope rather than treating the order copy as a current witness statement.

Synthetic document notice: the invalid reference values and fictional names are intentionally incapable of identifying a live court record. The order terms are invented case paperwork and are not copied legislative text. Real legal forms, logos, seals, barcodes and signatures have not been reproduced. Prepared for the fictional case by Amity Vale, registry copy clerk, 26 September 2026. Contact: orders.copy@example.invalid; telephone 08 7000 0xxx.
